

CHRISTMAS TRADE EXCELLENT HERE

Rhinelanders Merchants Feel Well Satisfied With Business

Business conditions in the city have become about normal again after the holiday rush. As a rule the merchants of Rhinelander report a heavy Christmas trade and in several instances much larger than that of one year ago. Money seemed to be plentiful and the people took apparent pleasure in spending it.

The kind of gifts people purchase is taken as an indication of the condition of the times. If only useful articles are bought it is a sign that money is scarce while if a large amount of ornamental and costly goods are sold it usually means that prosperity prevails. This year in Rhinelander considerable money was left at the various stores for expensive gifts which had no value except for ornamental purposes.

In conversation with a number of merchants they expressed themselves as well satisfied with the holiday business. One dealer stated that his trade was far beyond expectations and that for two weeks before Christmas there was not a dull minute in his store.

The postoffice and express shipments of gifts from this city were very large, exceeding those of 1911. A glance through the various state papers show that throughout Wisconsin the Christmas business was good.

ANOTHER NEW ENTERPRISE

Rhinelanders Fuel Company Starts Business Here

January first, 1913, finds Rhinelander giving birth to another new enterprise, the Rhinelander Fuel Co. It will be the aim of this company to have a good supply of all kinds of wood at all times. "The man behind the gun" of the concern will require no introduction, being Fred Calkins, widely known through the county as a contestant for honors as "Potato King of Oneida County."

Mr. Calkins will devote the greater part of his time looking after his interests south of Lake Julia, where he has still standing, several thousand cords of tamarack and hard wood. He will also look after the buying of wood, and deliveries, aiming at all times to give prompt and efficient service to all comers.

J. G. Morgan of the Morgan Garage & Supply Co., will solicit orders and look after collections. The office will be in the Morgan Garage building opposite the Armory. Orders can be left there, or telephoned to 131-2.

This new enterprise will undoubtedly receive the liberal support of the wood burning public, they sharing the benefits with the farmers, who will find a ready market, at cash prices for wood in large quantities.

VILAS CO. NEWS GREETINGS

D. C. Menefee, publisher of The Vilas County News at Eagle River sends his patrons and friends New Year's greetings in the form of an attractively printed card in two colors, the product of the News job department. This little remembrance speaks well for the high quality of printing turned out by the News.

Not only does Mr. Menefee conduct a first class job department but he is also publishing a newspaper which does credit to himself and Eagle River. The people there should show their appreciation of his efforts by their liberal support.

BOTH PLEAD GUILTY

JOHN LAVIN AFFLICTED

Old Resident Of City Sent To Northern Hospital.

John Lavin, an old and respected resident of the city, became suddenly insane at his home on the south side Friday evening. Relatives and friends succeeded in calming him but Saturday evening he grew worse and it was necessary for the authorities to care for him. Mr. Lavin was examined by Doctors Elliott and Westgate who found him mentally deranged and his commitment to the Northern Asylum at Winnebago followed. He was taken to that institution Tuesday by Under-sheriff Assmundson and Mr. Lavin's brother.

About two weeks ago Mr. Lavin announced his intention of becoming a candidate for city street commissioner and it is believed that brooding over the matter caused his misfortune. His many friends in Rhinelander earnestly hope that the treatment at the state hospital will return him to his former good health.

NEW BASKET BALL TEAM FOR CITY

Company L Forms Strong Quintette And Defeats High School Monday

The newly organized Company L basket ball team played its initial game of the season with the High school quintette at the Armory Monday evening. 29 to 12 was the score in favor of the Militia boys.

With the organization of the company team the game of basket ball is destined to be very popular in Rhinelander during the winter. It is the desire of the managers of the new team to secure as many games as possible with outside teams. The first contest will probably be with Arbor Vitae as this team has already requested a match.

Basket ball is a clean, healthful sport and the people of Rhinelander are urged to boost it here by attending all the games and otherwise giving it their support.

The lineup of Company L team is as follows:
Arthur McDermott, Forward
Charles Chafee, Forward
F. Froger, Center and Captain
P. Royelle, Guard
H. Anderson, Guard

WILL APPEAL TO THE LEGISLATURE

County Board Committee Show Evi's Of Reforestation System

To Members of the Wisconsin Legislature:
Gentlemen:—

Our beautiful State of Wisconsin now stands committed to a system of reforestation which has proved to be a positive injury to Northern Wisconsin and its residents.

While every county in the state is affected to some extent by reforestation, directly or indirectly, there are certain counties which are peculiarly affected, and Oneida County is one of them. This county is comprised of 34 1/2 Government Townships with a total acreage of 760,480, of which the state is holding for reforestation purposes 69,620.48 acres, or about .0915 per cent of the total area of the county. Some of the towns of this county particularly affected are Woodruff, Newbold, Minocqua, Pine Lake, Sugar Camp and Hazelhurst.

To illustrate: The Town of Woodruff has a total acreage of 13,258, of which 10,174 or .557 per cent, acres are owned by the state, and in the Town of Newbold, which has a total acreage of 58,864, 11,842 acres or .201 per cent, are owned by the state.

That the result of such a large proportional holding of lands by the state is disastrous to such towns is self-evident. In the Town of Woodruff, where the tax levy upon lands for the year of 1912, (excluding personal property and improvements) was $2097.00, the average tax per acre, including the entire acreage of the town, would be $1.149, while the average tax per acre under present conditions (state lands being non-taxable) is $2.061, thus resulting in an increase of tax on lands because of state ownership to the extent of .755 per cent. And in the Town of Newbold, where the tax levy upon lands for the year of 1912, (exclusive of personal property and improvements) was $7432.60, the average tax per acre, including the entire acreage of the town, would be $1.161, while the average tax per acre under present conditions is $1.500, or an increase of the tax on such lands to the extent of 24 per cent due to such state ownership.

When we consider that the presence of state lands within a town does nothing towards decreasing the necessary expenditures and taxes of that town, and that lands purchased by the state are removed from the amount of available taxable property and that as a consequence all the taxes must be paid by the owners of other property in that town, it is easily seen that local residents must and do suffer an increase in the amount of their respective taxes.

For example: A town has 20,000 acres of taxable lands and requires a tax levy, in addition to the tax on personal property and incomes, of $2,000. The land would then have to pay and bear taxes at an average of ten cents per acre. Now suppose the state comes in and takes 10,000 acres for reforestation purposes. This reduces the taxable land to one half of the former amount, and to raise the tax of $2,000 the residents of the town would have to pay taxes on the average of twenty cents per acre. In this way each man's taxes would be doubled with no corresponding benefit.

Another injustice and mistake is to use these lands for reforestation when they are in fact most excellent agricultural lands. Oneida county has now developed to such an extent that it bids fair to become one of the greatest dairying and agricultural counties in the state. This is evidenced not only by the superiority and quality of the crops but also by the fact that Prof. E. L. Luther has been sent to this county to advance the farming industries. That

ANOTHER MINSTREL SHOW

Rhinelanders Elks Plan On Second Big Entertainment

The Rhinelander Elks are planning to produce another minstrel show in this city some time in the coming spring. Prompted by the success of their first minstrel entertainment last spring the Elks feel that a second show will make even a greater hit. The best talent in the city will be engaged for the program and rehearsals will begin within a few weeks. The intention is to put on the very best home talent attraction ever staged in Rhinelander.

Some of the Elks have suggested that it would be appropriate to give a big free street parade on the day of the show after the custom of professional companies. This would be a splendid drawing card and will no doubt be carried out.

MASONIC LODGE GIVES BANQUET

Occasion One Of Largest And Most Enjoyable Given By Fraternity

The Masonic Lodge of this city gave an elaborate and most delightful banquet last Friday evening at six o'clock at their hall. The refreshments, consisting of a four course dinner were prepared and served by the Eastern Star. After the feast, Alex. McRae acted as Toastmaster, and introduced the speakers with appropriate remarks. Rev. J. M. Johnson spoke at some length on "What Influence Masonry should have on other organizations." Attorney Charles W. Fricke spoke on "Masonry's Influence on Affairs of State." Supt. Colburn spoke on "What Influence Masonry should have in connection with public schools." Agr. Rep. Luther on the effect Masonry should have upon the future.

All of the addresses were interspersed with stories and witicism with excellent suggestions and thoughts.

Miss Hart delighted her hearers with a recitation and Mrs. Scott as a representative of the Eastern Star made a hit with her burlesque on the rites of Masonry. A mixed quartet, consisting of Mesdames Richards and Moore and Messrs. Colburn and Wilson rendered "Oh Italia," which was greeted by deafening applause. Mrs. Richards and Mr. Colburn responded with a duet. After the exercises, same departed but a goodly number remained till a late hour enjoying cards or dancing to the music of the Harp Orchestra.

The occasion was one of the largest and most enjoyable ever given by the Masonic Fraternity.

MRS. JOHN PEGOR KILLED IN WEST

Telegram Tells Of Shooting Of A Former Rhinelander Woman

A telegram received in this city Monday from John Pegor at Hagerman, North Dakota, stated that his wife had been accidentally shot and killed there that day. No particulars of the tragedy were given in the message and nothing has since been heard from Mr. Pegor.

Mrs. Pegor's maiden name was Miss Pauline Grimmer and she was well known in Rhinelander. Her home was at North Crandon.

Mr. and Mrs. Pegor had been residing at Hagerman for about three months, moving there from Minneapolis. He was in charge of a meat market there.

OLD RESIDENTS ANSWER LAST CALL

Death Summons Four Well Known Citizens Of Rhinelander

JOHN MCCARDELL
John McCardell, one of the pioneer residents of the city, who many years followed the carpenter trade here, passed away Saturday afternoon at his apartments at the Hotel Alpine. Mr. McCardell had been in feeble health for a number of months and a few weeks before his death failed rapidly.

Mr. McCardell was 67 years of age. He located in Rhinelander in the early days when building operations were on the boom and assisted in the erection of many residences and business buildings. He was considered a first class carpenter. He was always of a genial disposition and his friends were many.

The body was shipped to his old home at Royalton, Wis., for burial Monday. A daughter who lives at Weyauwega survives him and a nephew, Fred Ricker, is a resident of Rhinelander.

A. C. BLITCH

A. C. Blich, for over twenty five years a resident of this city, died late Monday night at his home on Brown street after a brief illness. Acute pneumonia was the cause of death. During the last six months he had not been in the best of health although he was able to continue work until a few days before the end.

For years after locating in Rhinelander Mr. Blich followed the barber business. He was well known throughout this part of the state and had a host of friends.

He leaves to mourn him a wife and three children, namely, Ida, Charles, and Vera.

Funeral services were conducted from the residence at ten o'clock this morning. Rev. Grant Clark, of the Congregational church, officiated.

JOHN DANIELSON

John Danielson, who for over twenty-five years has been a resident of this city, died suddenly from heart failure early Tuesday morning. He was sitting in a chair in his home on Edgar street when death overtook him.

Mr. Danielson was seventy three years of age and is survived by a wife and two sons, William Danielson, son of the Danielson & Pierce Lumber Company, and Andrew Danielson of Gary & Danielson. Deceased was well known in the city, his long residence here gaining for him a large acquaintance. He owned considerable property and the Scandinavian Hall building is included in his estate.

The funeral was conducted this afternoon from the residence of William Danielson at 327 North Brown street. Services were in the Swedish Lutheran faith of which deceased was a member.

Sympathy is extended to the family in the loss of their husband and father.

J. H. SARGENT

Another old soldier of this city has been removed by death. John Henry Sargent, a veteran of the Civil War and a long time resident of Rhinelander, responded to the final roll at his home, 827 Keenan St., at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday night. Mr. Sargent's last illness was of short duration although his health had been frail for some time past. He suffered from a general breakdown due to the infirmities of advanced age.

Deceased was 71 years old and a native of Vermont, born in 1842. He served with credit in the war of the rebellion and was later engaged at railroad work.

During his residence in Rhinelander he made innumerable friends and was known and liked by young and old. Even in recent years he took interest in military affairs and was a frequent visitor at the local Armory.

MILITARY ORCHESTRA BUSY

Popular Organization Is Filling Many Engagements

The Military orchestra, Rhinelander's popular musical organization, is furnishing music for about ninety of the dances and parties being given in Rhinelander and vicinity. Tuesday evening the Military Harp orchestra filled an engagement in Pelican Lake and the same evening the Military orchestra supplied inspiration for a private party given by "Mike and Dutch" at Gilligan's hall. Last night the orchestra played for a New Year's dance at Gilligan's.

Three times a week the Military orchestra renders music at the Majestic theater, the programs consisting of the very latest selections.

Louis Danner, manager of the orchestra, says that he has several engagements booked ahead and also intends making a tour of northern Wisconsin later in the season.

MRS. H. C. TURRISH DIES IN DULUTH

Former Resident Of This City— Victim Of Paralytic Stroke

It is with deepest sorrow that the many friends in Rhinelander of Mrs. Henry C. Turrish learn of her death in Duluth last Thursday. The Turrish family resided in this city several years before moving to the north where Mr. Turrish accumulated a vast fortune in the timber business. To the sorrowing husband and children the sincere sympathy of Rhinelander people is extended. From the Superior Telegram the following account of Mrs. Turrish's death is taken:

The death of Mrs. Margaret H. Turrish, wife of Henry C. Turrish, occurred Thursday afternoon at the family residence, 1421 East Superior street Duluth. Mrs. Turrish had been in poor health since July 11, when she suffered a paralytic stroke and on Thanksgiving day was stricken with the second stroke.

Mrs. Turrish's maiden name was Margaret B. Keating. She was born in Berlin, Wis., Nov. 27, 1868. She was married to Mr. Turrish at Antigo, Wis., in June, 1891. Mr. and Mrs. Turrish lived at Rhinelander and Hayward and for a number of years in Superior before their removal to Duluth. Besides her husband Mrs. Turrish is survived by four daughters—Marie, Nannie, Vivian and Frances. The family were at her bedside when she passed away.

Mr. Turrish arrived home from the west last Friday after having been notified by a telegram of the critical condition of his wife.

Two of the daughters who were away at school were also summoned home at the same time. Miss Nannie was at the Bennett school, Milbrook, N. Y., and Miss Vivian, at Rosemary hall, Greenwich, Conn., and arrived home last Friday.

Merrill—

Judge A. H. Reid has handed down his decision in the case of Sec. J. W. Elliott of the Tomahawk Trade and Commerce who sued City Clerk Kelley of that city for back salary which he refused to pay, amounting to $150. The court decided that the office was one that the city council had a perfect right to establish and was not an office provided for or created by the general charter law of Wisconsin relating to eligibility of office holders, requiring them to be residents of the state for one year did not apply to this case, and in other words, it only applied to offices created by the charter and not the council and for that reason the plaintiff is entitled to hold office.

Iron River—

Charles Berger, a section man, was found dead near a switch a short distance from this city Thursday morning. Both his legs were severed below the knees. #### LOCAL PAPER ADS BEST

The Head Officers of the Modern Woodman of America continue to advise the local Camp organizations of that Society to advertise in the local newspapers. Many of them are following this suggestion, not only in the states recently entered by the Society, but also in others in which it is well established.

Where the field will warrant, the officers recommend the display advertisement as the thing. Some Camps have used whole pages of local newspapers within the last month or two. Others have found it possible to set forth within twenty lines the claims of the Society respecting sound insurance at the lowest rates. A snappy paragraph once a week will get results, in the opinion of Head Consul A. R. Talbot, though the display ad. will attract greater attention.

GOING TO EUROPE

Mr. and Mrs. O.A. Hilgerman of this city plan to depart the middle of January for Europe. They will spend the remainder of the winter on the continent and will visit Germany, France and Italy. They will make sojourns at all the principal places of interest and have arranged a very pleasant journey.

Mr. Bradley is survived by three daughters and one brother, James W. Bradley.

Avoid the Cheap and "Big Can" Baking Powders

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation; they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money, but it's not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not always make light, wholesome food. Furthermore, these cheap baking powders have a very small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as it does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be. Cheap baking powders leave the bread sometimes bleached and acid, sometimes yellow and alkaline, and often unpalatable. They are never of uniform strength and quality.

Why not buy a perfectly whole some baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same time moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet is always the same, keeps indefinitely and gives the cook the least trouble. Received Highest Awards: World's Pure Food Exposition, Chicago, Ill.; Paris Exposition, France, March, 1912.

INDIAN TRIBES ARE PROSPEROUS

Chippewas Of Lac du Flambeau And Other Reserves Have $83,070

The Indian Tribes of Wisconsin mostly located in this section of the state, are the wealthiest in the United States east of the Mississippi river, according to the official report of the fiscal affairs of the tribes, which have just been sent to congress by the secretary of the interior, and data from which has been received here.

The Menominee tribe has to its credit in the hands of the government, $1,671,697, while the Chippewas have $83,070 and the Stockbridge and Munsee have $79,731. In addition to this the Pottawatomes share in the fund of $439,387, held jointly for them and the Pottawatomes of Kansas; the Winnebagoes of Wisconsin join with the fellow members of their tribe in Nebraska in a fund of $903,861 and the Oneidas of Wisconsin and New York share in a fund of $79,659.

But these funds are not growing any larger, despite the fact that the government credits the Indians with an annual interest income of 4 per cent. From the Menominee fund for instance, a deduction of $311,783 was made for "salaries of employees," while $266,361 was spent under the title of "for support and civilization."

This however does not include the expenses of the Indian schools, maintained from a separate fund, and for which the following expenditures were made in Wisconsin: Hayward day school, $1,119; Keshena boarding school, $1,150; Keshena day school, $722; Lac du Flambeau boarding school, $24,712; La Pointe day school, $5,360; Oneida boarding school, $22,975; Red Cliff day school, $1,306; Wittenberg boarding school, $10,871.

The secretary's report shows that the aggregate sum to the credit of the Indian tribes in Uncle Sam's treasury is $44,519,533. During the past year the disbursements included $4,469,039 for "salaries of employees," $77,250, for "attorney fees," $4,442,154 for "support and civilization," and $5,438,015 for "per capita payments in money."

Harvey Habitzel has received the appointment of postmaster at Long Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Gabel of Rhinelander were Christmas guests at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. Gabel.

Dr. and Mrs. Conover and baby are visiting Rhinelander relatives. J. D. Raymond returned Thursday from Rhinelander.

The opening of the schools was postponed from last Monday until next Monday on account of sickness in the town.

Miss Marie Middendorf of Crandon spent a brief vacation at her home here.

The sale of the property owned by the H. L. Roe Lumber Co. which was to be sold at Sheriff sale last Saturday took place Friday states the Northern Citizen. The deal was consummated in private, Bert Garlock and John F. Peterson buying the property. The consideration has not been made public but it is understood that the purchasing price covered the mortgage and interest amounting to about $1100. Mr. Garlock states that he has had offers from a butcher and a druggist to open up business here. He is undecided at present which offer he will accept. As this property has been in litigation for over a year it has been lying idle but now that Mr. Garlock has taken possession of the property we hope that a good business will be started soon. The location is a good one for either of the above mentioned businesses and Mr. Garlock ought to be able to interest either one of these men in locating here.

WHO DOESN'T MAKE MISTAKES

The editor of an exchange doesn't want anyone to send him any more copies of his papers in which they have found mistakes. If they find a perfect copy, however, he offers a big price for it. Same with all of us. If the fool critic who hunts for mistakes in the papers would find them all he would be kept busy. We will be pleased to buy copies of any paper which can be proven entirely free from errors either in typographical or in statements of facts. We will also be pleased to find a merchant who never made a mistake in putting up an order; a lawyer who never lost a case through his own error; a doctor who never wrongly diagnosed a case; a druggist who never made a mistake; a post office official who never put mail into the wrong box; a woman who never forgot to put in the salt while cooking or to put the tea in the teapot before putting in the water. Bring on some of your mistakeless paragons who find it so easy to criticize the papers and we'll give them the chance of their lives to find out whether they are really human.—Ex change.

SIGNALS OF DISTRESS

Rhinelanders People Should Know How to Read and Heed Them

Disordered kidneys give many signals of distress.

The secretions may be dark, contain sediment.

Passages are sometimes frequent, scanty, painful.

Backache is often present day and night.

Headaches and dizzy spells may occur.

Weakened kidneys should receive quick help.

Don't delay! Use a special kidney remedy.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys, backache and urinary disorders.

Hackley evidence proves their worth.

Mrs. A. Denoyer, Box No. 83, Hackley, Wis., says: "One of us was troubled by weak kidneys for ten years. He was sometimes laid up for days and could not find a remedy that would give him relief. Finally I had the good fortune to learn of Doan's Kidney Pills and got a supply. They greatly relieved him and built up his health."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

The boxes of candy distributed by the Saterstrom grocery to their friends and patrons at Christmas time was a pleasing compliment of the season and appreciated by all who were favored. The custom of giving out Christmas candy has been carried out by the Saterstrom store for several seasons past.

HOW TO RESIST

Chronic Coughs and Colds.

Strong, vigorous men and women hardly ever catch cold; it's only when the system is run down and vitality low that colds and coughs get a foothold.

Now isn't it reasonable that the right way to cure a cough is to build up your strength again?

Mrs. Olivia Parham, of East Durham, N. C., says: "I took Vinol for a chronic cough which had lasted two years, and the cough not only disappeared, but it built up my strength as well."

The reason Vinol is so efficacious in such cases is because it contains in a delicious concentrated form all the medicinal curative elements of cod liver oil, with tonic, blood-building iron added.

Chronic coughs and colds yield to Vinol because it builds up the weakened, run-down system.

You can get your money back any time if Vinol does not do all we say. P. S. For Eczema of Scalp try our Sazo Salve. We guarantee it.

John J. Reardon Druggist, Rhinelander, Wis.

SWEET CHILD SINGER

Miss Ruth McCormick, the child singer who has been pleasing Majestic audiences this week, possesses a remarkably sweet voice for one of her years. Her singing is full of volume and every word can be distinctly heard in every part of the theater. It is worth the price of admission to the Majestic to hear this little girl render one of her charming songs.

The picture program at the Majestic is one of high class and the subjects never fail to interest. Mr. Zander is a member of one of the leading film exchanges which furnishes him with a complete change of subjects five times a week. Large audiences attend the nightly performances at the Majestic, a fact which proves the popularity of the house.

LIEUT. ZETTELER DEAD

Lieut. Frederick T. Zetteler, a resident of Milwaukee for over sixty years and father of Frank Zetteler who was at one time employed in the office of Paul Browne in this city, died Sunday.

Mr. Zetteler won prominence during the Civil War as an efficient and fearless soldier. He organized and was captain of the Milwaukee Zouaves and participated in many notable battles. He is survived by five children.

Mrs. A. R. Tabor, of Crider, Ill., had been troubled with sick headache for about five years, when she began taking Chamberlain's Tablets. She has taken two bottles of them and they have cured her. Sick headache is caused by a disordered stomach for which these tablets are especially intended. Try them, get well and stay well. Sold by All Dealers.

KEEP OFF "THE BOBS"

"Catching bobs," a practice among children is dangerous and should be ceased. Many serious accidents have resulted from this custom. In Antigo the police have taken steps to prevent the evil and have urged all teamsters to keep the youngsters off sleighs. The police of this city are going to act in the matter too and will do all in their power to keep the little folks from jumping sleighs.

HORRIBLE SLAUGHTER

A terrible slaughter occurred Christmas day in a lumber camp near Brainerd, Minn., when a crew of lumberjacks steeped with alcohol became involved in a free for all battle. Knives and other deadly weapons were resorted to and when the slaying was over fourteen of the crew lay dead on the shanty floor. Never before has such a bloody carnage been recorded in the history of northern lumber woods. A newspaper report states that the alcohol of which the men consumed crazed their brains and that they became like raving maniacs.

If your children are subject to attacks of croup, watch for the first symptom, hoarseness. Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the child becomes hoarse and the attack may be warded off. For sale All Dealers.

WOLVES ARE NUMEROUS

According to the reports of hunters and trappers wild animals native to this section are exceedingly numerous in the woods this winter. Fur valuable animals such as mink and muskrats are more plentiful than usual.

There is said to be a large number of wolves; these pests are causing great destruction of deer and live stock. One farmer in the western part of the country suggests that it would be well for the farmers to get together and go on a two days wolf hunt. In this manner it would be possible to kill off many of the beasts and also realize good returns from the bounties.

BURNS IN CAMP FIRE

Peter Torquin, Woodsman, Has Terrible Death in Minnesota

Peter Torquin, a woodsman, who it is said, at one time was employed in lumber camps in this vicinity, was buried to death in a fire in northern Minnesota last Friday. The shanty in which Torquin and a number of others were sleeping, caught fire from a defective stove and he was unable to escape from the building. Two other woodsmen were badly burned but not fatally. The story states that Torquin had been to a nearby town on a Christmas celebration and when he returned to camp was in a deplorable state of drunkenness. When the fire broke out in the camp he was probably in such a sound stupor that he could not leave his bunk. His body, charred beyond recognition, was found in the ruins.

Are you writing it "1913"? If so, will you continue to do so in a few days?

Next week we will further demonstrate to the people the injustice of the forestry department to northern Wisconsin.

If the average tax payer of this city doubted the unbiased statements of the New North before the spring election, he certainly will vividly recall them when he pays his taxes.

When we begin to study the limitations of the parcels post law we wonder if the masses have not had another joker put over on them by the tools of the express companies in congress.

This issue of the New North contains a complete explanation of the parcels post system together with descriptive map of the zones with rates of postage. It would be well for readers to preserve this article for future reference.

Now that the iron dynamiters are convicted the government better give time to the conviction of the employers of the cotton workers at Lawrence, Mass., who first starved their laborers and then had them shot down like dogs when they could endure their privations no longer.

The awful thing in connection with the conviction of the iron workers is that a man like Orlie McManigal who confesses himself to have been a dynamiter and murderer should go scot free, simply because he betrays his companions in crime.

Imprisonment in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., was imposed Monday upon thirty-three union leaders convicted of having been engaged in a conspiracy to ship explosives on the cars of common carriers, in violation of interstate commerce laws. The shipment was charged to be in pursuit of a plot to wreck property in various parts of the United States from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

NEW NORTH'S ANNIVERSARY

Last week's issue of the Rhinelander New North was the anniversary number commemorating the thirtieth year of the publication's existence. The issue contained forty pages and in its columns gave the history of the city from the time the first white man settled at the junction of the Wisconsin and Pelican rivers, down to the present day. The New North is congratulated upon the enterprise shown in the issue.—Vilas County News.

TO VOTE BY MAIL

An opportunity to vote by mail is one of the unique amendments which it is proposed to make to the election laws at this session of the legislature. The measure will be urged primarily by the traveling men of Wisconsin many of whom lose their vote every year because of their absence from the state on business at election time. At least one other state has a law of this character.

The absent voting measure will be made to include a citizen of Wisconsin who may be absent in any other part of the United States by having a special absent ballot ready for voters nine days previous to the election in the hands of the village or city clerk. The absent voter can either by personal or written application through the mail apply for such a ballot and vote that ballot in the presence of any officer eligible to take an affidavit. Such a ballot will be enclosed in a sealed envelope by the one casting it and inserted into an outside envelope upon one side of which is provided a place for an affidavit of the person casting the ballot. The other side will be for the address of the city or village clerk of his home precinct.

According to the proposed measure all such ballots received by the city or village clerk are to be turned over by him to the election officers of the proper precinct at the time that the official ballots are turned over to such officers. The election officers are to judge the legality of the ballot by the affidavit on the outside of the envelope.

AN ATTRACTIVE EDITION

The anniversary edition of the New North of Rhinelander is at hand. It is in every way a commendable issue, and sets forth in clear light the attractions of Rhinelander and Oneida county. The people of that section are to be congratulated on the possession of so able an advocate as the New North, and that it is under the able management of so thorough a progressive gentleman as Mr. F. A. Lowell. The Telegram offers its heartiest congratulations to Mr. Lowell, and tenders the compliments of the season to him, and to the good people of Oneida county. May they all "live long and prosper."—Superior Daily Telegram.

STILL DECEIVING

The report of the income tax assessor, Ira Parker, and published in this city, is calculated and probably intended to give the impression that the income tax law is a great success and that many people who had hitherto escaped taxation are now compelled to pay a share of their incomes to the state, but study of this income tax law is, for not one-fifth of the men and corporations shown on the list will have to pay one dollar of the tax set against them in the list, their personal property tax much more than offsetting the amount assessed under this law. There are some 175 names on the list and only about twenty-five of them will have to pay any income tax, their personal property being deducted, and it is safely estimated that not $600.00 will be collected in the entire county under the income tax law, far too small an amount to pay the salary of the assessor and his necessary expenses.

The law is careful for many reasons besides its failure to secure a revenue. It permits public officials to secure information concerning the private affairs of the individual which should not be permitted. It is exceedingly troublesome, the forms which have to be made out being complicated and indefinite, and often contradictory. The effort made to bolster up this law by false statements such as made in this and other counties should be exposed. The law helps no one except the salaried officials who by it obtain a fat salary. It does not bring in any adequate revenue but it does cause a lot of trouble and expense to the taxpayers, who have to be particularly watchful if they are to escape double taxation.—Rhinelander News.

The above article is just as far from the truth as Little Friday generally gets when he wishes to bolster up any of his theories to throw the burden on the little tax payer. Ira S. Parker did not suggest the publication of the list of men who pay incomes neither did the New North wish to carry any wrong impression for it said when the incomes were published that in a large number of cases the personal property tax will wipe out the income tax, entirely. Neither does he tell the truth when he says out of the 175 not over twenty-five will have to pay any tax at all. Along this same line of misrepresentation is the statement that it is safe to say not over six hundred dollars will be collected under the income tax law in the entire county. The four following firms will together pay more than the six hundred net income: Paul Browne Insurance Agency, Barnes-Wessner Agency, Mineral Products Co., Oneida Land & Abstract Co. In fact, the income tax from these four firms is about $700.00, seventy percent of which, or $490.00, the city gets, twenty percent or about $140.00 the county receives and ten percent the state gets towards paying Ira S. Parker's salary. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, so such wholesale misrepresentations as were in the News makes people have no faith in the reliability of this "organ." It is about as near the truth as were the statements of this "Special Interest" organ when the city was fighting to reduce the electric light schedule, and every user of electric current knows about this.

We would advise the "so-called" little editor of the News to use a few facts if he wished the people to have any faith in anything he says.

WHAT PRES. WILSON IS LIKE

People all over this land are now interested in the man who was elected to the presidency after only two years of political activity. At he had been but little in the public eye, but little was known to the public about his life and family. The following facts about him may be of interest:

He is 56 years of age and has a charming and beautiful wife and three charming daughters.

His daughters all look much more like him than like their mother. They are all grown and unmarried.

His first name is Thomas but he has not used it for many years. They called him Tommy in college.

He does not use tobacco. Drinks a little wine sometimes and a Scotch highball when very tired. Butter milk is his favorite beverage.

He is nearly blind in his right eye as a result of an accident in youth.

When reading he holds a monocle in front of the damaged eye.

His favorite recreation is golf, but he walks very much.

Sleeps nine to twelve hours out of every twenty-four.

Likes automobiling but often goes to sleep in the motor.

He is a shorthand and typewriting expert. Writes all his speeches lectures and books that way. He uses the Graham system of shorthand.

He is 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighs 177 pounds.

He can run a half mile at a good pace without losing his wind.

Dislikes military display.

Except for a few thousand dollars which he saved from his salary as president of Princeton, he has no money or property.

Considers "13" his lucky number. There are thirteen letters in his name and in thirteen years as professor at Princeton he was elected its thirteenth president.

Likes to go to the theater. Prefers comedy to light opera.

His best speeches are impromptu. He has enormous ears and a large mouth, with large, irregular, somewhat discolored teeth.

He wears eye glasses all the time. Was a good baseball and football player when a young man.

He is Scotch-Irish.

His father was a Presbyterian minister, and he is a Presbyterian, too.

When away from home he sends his wife a telegram every night.

Thos. J. Morter Swallows Carbolic Acid By Mistake

Thomas J. Morter, father of Attorney R. J. Morter, is confined at his home on the south side recovering from the effects of a dose of carbolic acid which he swallowed Monday afternoon through mistake.

Mr. Morter, not feeling well, had been taking medicine which was in a bottle similar to that containing the acid. He accidentally took the acid bottle and before he had discovered his mistake swallowed a small quantity of the deadly fluid. A physician was hurriedly summoned and after the administration of antidotes Mr. Morter began to revive. He is still in a weak condition but is congratulating himself on his narrow escape.

Their Joint Beef.

During the Kimberley siege a colonel in charge of the mess one night addressed this little speech to his fellow officers: "Gentlemen, I am sorry to say we were only able to draw half our ration in beef today. This joint I am carrying is beef; at the other end of the table the joint is horse. If any one would like to try the other, perhaps he will carry it for himself." No one cared to try the horse, however, so it was decided that all would be content with half rations of beef, and the other joint was left severely alone. After dinner was over, one of the orderlies confessed that he had misplaced the joints, and the beef was still intact.—London Answers.

England's Youngest Bride.

The youngest bride who was ever led to the altar in England, so far as we can discover, was little Catherine Appleby, who had only seen four summers when she became the wife of the first Earl Bathurst, who was exactly double her age. The tiny ring worn by Catherine on this occasion, over two centuries ago, is still preserved. Lord Bathurst survived to see the eighty-third anniversary of his wedding day, while his lady was a wife for seventy-six years.—London Chronicle.

Growth of Rocks.

Rocks do not grow in the sense that a plant grows. They may increase by accretion, and they may undergo chemical change. The old sea bed, being lifted up, becomes sandstone and limestone. The volcanic ash and lava strewn over the plains become tufa, hard enough for building stone. The pebbly shore of a river becomes conglomerate. The simple mineral does grow, however, when it takes a crystal form. The sparkling prism of quartz increases from an atom to a crystal as large as a forearm by a process of addition and assimilation, wonderfully slow, but beautifully regular, exactly as crystals of ice form on the window-pane.

His Wig in His Pocket.

Benjamin Franklin once wore his wig in his pocket at the court of Versailles. When he was about to present himself at the court for the first time he was informed that a wig was essential. Franklin's head was so large that no ordinary wig would begin to fit it. However, one was found sufficiently large to pass him through the ante-chambers, after which he was permitted to remove the ridiculous conventional appendage and place it in his ample pocket.

Early Hours.

Employer—Are you afraid of early hours? Applicant—No, sir. You can't close too early for me, sir.

Simple Swimming Apparatus.

A swimming apparatus by means of which a person without any previous knowledge may pass through the water with perfect safety at the rate of sixteen miles an hour has been constructed by a French inventor. The apparatus consists of a plank about six feet long, with floats at each end. It can be folded and easily transported.

A Cowardly Schoolmaster

By ELEANOR TRASK

When my husband got the gold fever, away back in the seventies, and declared he would go to Colorado, after trying a long while to dissuade him, I said, "Very well; I'll go with you." He was mighty pleased at that, for I was so opposed to his going that he never dreamed he would have me with him. When we got out to Colorado and Jim went roaming about with his pick I went with him, though about the only thing I could do for him was to cook and mend his clothes. We blundered most of the time, though occasionally we found a deserted hut, half logs and half earth. But we didn't like to stop at any of them, for there was generally nearby evidence of the failure of prospectors in the shape of holes in the ground.

Up to a certain point we had the same luck as the diggers of these holes, but at last one day, while we were taking a noon rest, and Jim was napping, some red rock near by that looked as if there might be gold in it, I took the pick and, going to where it was, chipped off a bit of it. It looked so well that I awakened Jim, who the moment he saw it declared that it was nearly all gold.

We worked the place for several days, at the end of which time it was decided that I should go down to Denver and see if I could get any one to furnish the money to develop our find. I filled a bag I carried with specimens, some of which were intended to pay my way. I left Jim with the claim, walked to the road where the stage passed and when it came along got aboard.

The passengers had been told that it wouldn't be safe to carry any valuables, for the coach had been robbed nearly every day. They were all very nervous and at the least sound were badly frightened. There were a woman with a coarse voice and coarser features, a couple of miners and a schoolmaster. The coarse woman said she didn't care how many road agents we would meet, for she hadn't anything to lose. The schoolmaster shrank back in a corner as though desirous of making himself as inconspicuous as possible. He was a small sized man, but seemed to me not to lack strength. The woman asked him what he would do if he were attacked, and the question seemed to throw him into a panic. He trembled all over.

The road agents stopped us, sure enough. We heard a voice in advance of us say to the driver, "Rein up, Josh," and the coach came to a standstill. It was all so quiet that we could hardly believe we were held up. But presently the door of the coach was thrown open and a man with a revolver in his right hand stood at the opening. As soon as he let go the door with the other hand he took an additional revolver from his belt.

"Step out, please, ladies and gents," he said in a tone so gentle that one would have supposed we had come to the end of our journey. The two miners got out first, then the woman. I saw a glance pass between the robber and her that made me believe they were friends. As she passed him he asked, "Anything worth having?" to which she replied, "There's a man in there playin' schoolmaster, but I suspect he's carryin' funds for a bank." As she said this she threw off her woman's hat and unbuttoned her dress, and it fell at her feet, revealing a he and not a she.

The only ones remaining in the coach were the schoolmaster and I, sitting, he on the front, I on the back seat. But while this was going on he crowded down under the middle seat.

"Come out of that," yelled the robber, but the schoolmaster failed to obey, and the robber undertook to drag him out. To do this with a revolver in each hand was impossible. He put one weapon back in his belt and with the free hand reached in under the seat and took the schoolmaster by the collar. While he was pulling him out I heard a sharp explosion and saw the robber fall back. But before I had had time even to wonder what had happened I saw the schoolmaster jump like a tiger on to the man that had been playing woman and bear him to the ground. The miners, seeing a chance for victory, sprang to his assistance and held his victim till he got a pair of bracelets on the fallen man's wrists.

It turned out that the schoolmaster was a sheriff. The recent robberies had all been committed by two men. One traveled on the coach in various disguises in order to learn what valuables were aboard the coach; the other did the robbing. The sheriff had spotted the traveling partner and had gone as a passenger to break up their game, playing timid in order to lead his enemies into an ambush.

The robber that had been killed was buried before we proceeded. His pal was taken on the coach down to Denver, where he was tried for a highwayman and sent to prison for twenty years. As for the sheriff, he went back to where he had come from and continued his official duties as unostentatiously as if nothing had happened.

But he received a large reward from the express company which was sending treasure over the route.

I had good luck in Denver in the assays of my lumps and succeeded in getting capital to develop our claim. The result was "The Schoolmaster mine," I naming it from the hero of my journey.

Her Decision

By BEATRICE STURDEVANT

When Farmer Merton died—his wife had been dead several years—his daughter Lucy was seventeen years old. Every one said what a pity it was that she didn't have a lover, so that she could be married and thus be provided for. She did have a lover, but he had gone away, no one knew nor cared where, for he was a ne'er-do-well, shiftless, worthless. But he was near Lucy's age and the only one who had made love to her. That he was her only lover is not remarkable, for she was still almost too young to have one. Inexperienced as she was, her heart went out to him, and when he departed he took it with him.

But Providence at the time Lucy was left an orphan raised up a friend to her. Stephen Woodbridge, a neighbor, thirty-five years old, hired a woman to go into the Merton home and remain there with Lucy until she could form a plan for her future. Stephen did more than this. He had her father's farm appraised by several good men in the neighborhood and bought it at a larger price than the appraisal, but even with this help Lucy was left with nothing, because her father had died heavily in debt.

What was the poor child to do? A friend of Stephen's said to him one day: "Why don't you marry her? You are alone in the world, and she needs to be provided for." A great joy at the mere suggestion welled up in Stephen's heart. "I'm too old for her," he replied. But, though he knew this, he did not act upon it. He went to Lucy and told her that if she could be satisfied to be his wife her problem would be solved.

Lucy had been thinking a great deal during her trouble about James Tucker, her lover, and wished he were there that he might help her. But he was not there, and she had no expectation of his coming. So she accepted Stephen Woodbridge's proposition. Stephen had his doubts about the arrangement, realizing that she was barely out of childhood and fearing that she would not be happy with one who to her must seem an old man. He deferred the wedding for some time, leaving Lucy and the woman he had provided for her in the house where she had always lived.

It was nearly a year after her father's death before a day was set for the wedding. Stephen was very happy for Lucy to all outward appearances seemed at least not averse to the marriage. Stephen provided funds for a wedding outfit and made improvements in his house preparatory to the reception of his bride.

But a few days before the wedding all these plans were upset by the appearance of James Tucker. Finding his sweetheart about to marry another, he reproached her. The situation caused her such unhappiness that she could not help showing it. Stephen knew that Tucker had returned and was informed that he had been devoted to Lucy, his informant adding that it would be well for Stephen to look out for the younger man. This was said not only for Stephen's sake, but for Lucy's, since Tucker's worthlessness was well known.

But Woodbridge, far from looking out for Tucker, went to Lucy and told her that he was ready to give her up. Lucy seemed much distressed, but made no reply. "If Jim has nothing with which to support you," added Stephen, "you have means of your own, for since I bought your farm a railroad has been projected to run close beside it, and it is now worth double what I paid you for it. That excess I will return to you."

Still Lucy remained silent, and Stephen went on:

"Everything having been provided for a wedding, it may as well take place—with a change of grooms. Unless you wish it to the contrary I will give orders to that effect. If I don't hear from you during today I will consider my offer accepted."

He left her in great perplexity. That afternoon Tucker came to see her to say goodby, he said. When he went away he had received permission to go to Woodbridge and tell him that his proposition to Lucy had been accepted. It was a great blow to Woodbridge, but he bore up manfully and set about completing the arrangements for a wedding at which he was to have been the groom, but was now to be replaced by one whose age was more in keeping with that of the bride.

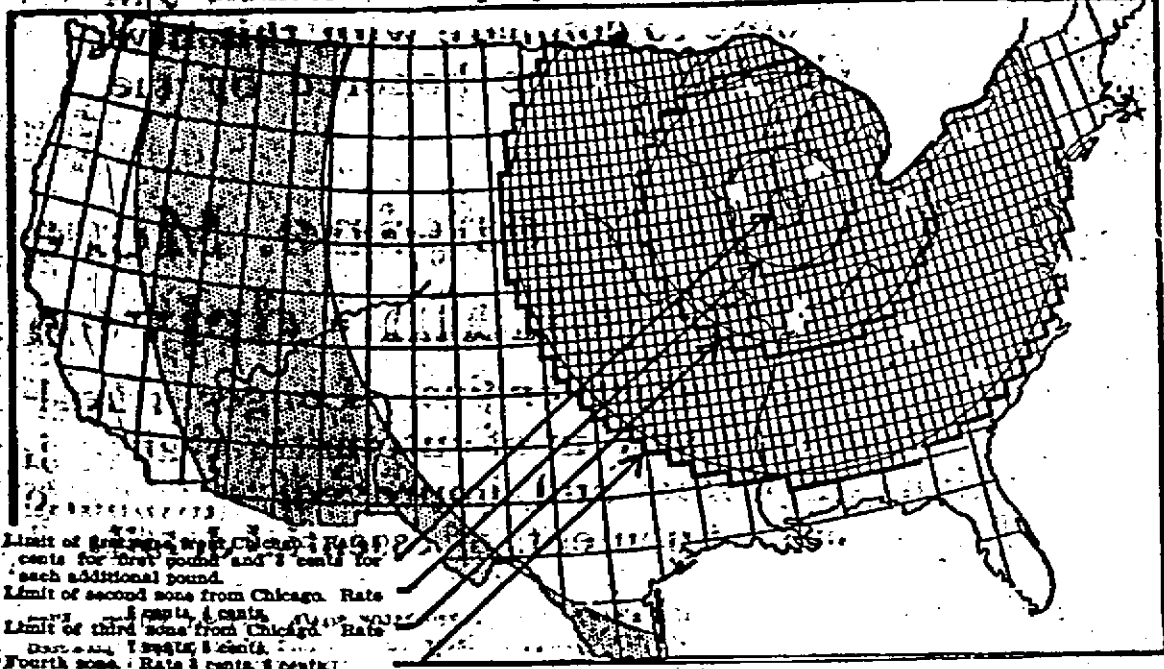

The evening before the wedding was to take place Stephen sat down in his lonely house before a fireplace, threw on some logs and gave himself up to despondency. He had met with the disappointment of his life. At that same hour the next evening the girl who was to have been his was to be wedded to another.

While he was sitting there Lucy was trying on the wedding dress that he had provided, to see that all was right. She stood looking at her reflection in a mirror, but she was not thinking of her apparel. Suddenly a resolution came to her. Skimming down a staircase, she left the house and ten minutes later opened the door of the room where Stephen Woodbridge sat and, kneeling beside him, threw her arms about him.

An hour later Lucy in her home was married to Stephen Woodbridge, after all, the man of her choice.

Her course may not have been admirable, but it was human. Moreover, it is to be remembered that she was half child, half woman.

TYPICAL DIAGRAM INDICATING PARCEL POST ZONES FROM CHICAGO AND SHOWING HOW TO COMPUTE POSTAGE ON PACKAGES.

The map made with Chicago as a base, shows how the zone system will be used in arranging rates for the parcel post service. Establishing rates by drawing circles of different diameters, with each postoffice as a center, would mean an impracticable amount of figuring. Instead of using townships and counties as units or starting points it was decided to divide the whole country into blocks or units, each block being half a degree in latitude in north-south extension and half a degree of longitude east and west. There are 1,440 of these units in the country.

An example of how to get the first zone is as follows: Find the center of the unit in which your postoffice is located. Draw a circle of fifty miles radius around that center. Every unit which lies wholly within that circle or more than half of which is within that circle is included in the first zone from any postoffice. The postage rate is 5 cents for the first pound and 1 cent for each additional pound.

The second zone is determined by drawing with the same center a circle of 100 miles radius. Every unit which lies within it, but outside of the first zone, is in the second zone, and the rate is 5 cents for the first pound and 1 cent for each additional pound.

The third zone is determined by drawing with the same center a circle of 150 miles radius. Every unit which lies within it, but outside of the second zone, is in the third zone, and the rate is 5 cents for the first pound and 1 cent for each additional pound.

The fourth zone is determined by drawing with the same center a circle of 200 miles radius. Every unit which lies within it, but outside of the third zone, is in the fourth zone, and the rate is 5 cents for the first pound and 1 cent for each additional pound.

The fifth zone is determined by drawing with the same center a circle of 250 miles radius. Every unit which lies within it, but outside of the fourth zone, is in the fifth zone, and the rate is 5 cents for the first pound and 1 cent for each additional pound.

The sixth zone is determined by drawing with the same center a circle of 300 miles radius. Every unit which lies within it, but outside of the fifth zone, is in the sixth zone, and the rate is 5 cents for the first pound and 1 cent for each additional pound.

The seventh zone is determined by drawing with the same center a circle of 350 miles radius. Every unit which lies within it, but outside of the sixth zone, is in the seventh zone, and the rate is 5 cents for the first pound and 1 cent for each additional pound.

The eighth zone is determined by drawing with the same center a circle of 400 miles radius. Every unit which lies within it, but outside of the seventh zone, is in the eighth zone, and the rate is 5 cents for the first pound and 1 cent for each additional pound.

For the purpose of carrying this law into effect the United States is divided into zones, with different rates of postage applicable to each, as follows:

Weight	Local zone, 50 miles	2nd zone, 100 miles	3rd zone, 150 miles	4th zone, 200 miles	5th zone, 250 miles	6th zone, 300 miles	7th zone, 350 miles	8th zone, 400 miles

3 pounds	7c	12c	17c	22c	27c	32c	37c	42c
4 pounds	8c	13c	18c	23c	28c	33c	38c	43c

Parcel Post Is Operated On Unit System With 8 Zones

Any One Can Learn Postage Rates by Figuring Out Distance From Postoffice. 3,500 Units—Government Sells Guides Cheaply.

BEGINNING New Year's day at 12 a. m. the new parcel post law permits any inhabitant of the United States to send through the mail merchandise of all descriptions, provided it does not weigh more than eleven pounds and is not more than six feet in length, four feet in width and six inches in thickness. One point the postmaster general wishes emphasized, and that is that all packages have to be taken to the postoffice by the sender, and this does not mean the numbered stationery ordinarily found in drug stores, but the regular postoffice stations.

The packages will be delivered at their destination in person, the delivery being as regular as the present letter service.

At present the number of men in the postal service has not been increased, such a step is considered unnecessary at present. The postoffice department has been working overtime since last July, when Congress passed the law preparing for the inauguration of the new service. A heavy mounting of the most efficient and intricate mails have been ordered for delivery before Jan. 1.

A most elaborate system of maps has been completed illustrating the zone system. They are being distributed various units in each zone. Every town is illustrated in a numbered unit, showing upon the map the first zone is any distance within fifty miles. The second zone is a greater distance, and so on. The last zone, which takes in Alaska and the Hawaiian Islands, but not the Philippines.

For instance, the map with its number shows that a package sent from Chicago to New York City is in the first zone.

WIRELESS PHONE A SUCCESS

Harvard Professor U. V. Pierce of the department of physics at Harvard has devised a new wireless telephone instrument which may eventually revolutionize the methods of long distance communication. The new instrument has already received the hearty endorsement of John H. Hammond, Jr., Professor Pierce was a guest at Mr. Hammond at his Gloucester laboratory at Fresh Water Cove recently, where a series of experiments was conducted with the new apparatus.

The wireless phone was concentrated about thirty feet above the level of the ground by means of the new instrument Professor Pierce, for this purpose, with the Harvard Wireless Unit thirty miles away, and talked with several of the club members for space covering fifteen minutes.

designate the zone. All he has to do is to mark his scale with the zone indicator and the machine will show the amount of postage.

The postoffice department has issued a guide book and map that can be purchased for 75 cents. There is also an insurance against loss of all packages not over $50.

Among the things that will not be accepted for delivery are intoxicants, explosives, inflammable liquids, live or dead animals, firearms, disease germs, books or printed matter.

A special series of stamps has been engraved for the service.

The greatest advantage of the parcel post is to the farmer who wants to sell his products direct to the consumer. A postal card for a dozen or more fresh eggs can be sent on one day and the eggs received the next. All kinds of produce will be acceptable. Eggs can be packed separately in cotton and placed in corrugated pasteurized boxes so they can be shipped with entire safety. All packages containing eggs must be marked "eggs."

All fragile articles, such as billiard balls, musical instruments, glassware, etc., must be marked "fragile."

It is expected that the parcel post will hurt the express companies' business, particularly in short deliveries, on account of the cheap rates of the parcel post. The suburban poultry and produce markets will be accessible to thousands of town buyers.

The parcel post stamps measure 1 by 1 1/2 inches between perforated lines. The color is red for all denominations. In a curved panel across the top, supported by a paneled perpendicular column at each end.

Triangular ornaments, occupy both upper corners. The denomination in large numerals is in each lower corner, with the title of the subject and the word "cents" or "dollars" between.

The designs on the several denominations are as follows:

- 1 cent—Postoffice clerk.
- 2 cents—City carrier.
- 3 cents—Railway postal clerk.
- 4 cents—Rural carrier.
- 5 cents—Mail train.
- 10 cents—Steamship and mail tender.
- 15 cents—Automobile service.
- 20 cents—Aeroplane carrying mail.
- 25 cents—Manufacturing.
- 30 cents—Dairying.
- 35 cents—Harvesting.
- 40 cents—Fruit growing.

RUSSIA'S BIGGEST FORGERY.

Gang Turned Out Millions of Counterfeit Notes.

Russia's secret police are busy tracing the producers of millions of counterfeit notes that have been passed into circulation in Russia and on Russian financial houses abroad. It is the biggest and most perplexing forgery case they have ever tackled.

Four of the men concerned in the frame—a commercial drummer named Dunalsky, a merchant named Semenov and two others named Liebenthal and Roshkin—have been captured with skillfully forged notes to the face value of nearly a quarter of a million rubles in their possession. They have been subjected to the Russian variety of the third degree examination, but have revealed nothing leading to the discovery of the forgers' factory.

Two men suspected of complicity were traced in vain to France.

Enjoy Yourself and Ignore Diet Tables, Says Sir George Birdwood.

Sir George Birdwood, officer of the Legion of Honor, former of the French Academy and formerly professor of anatomy and physiology at Bombay, has contributed at the age of eighty his views on how to reach a ripe old age. His maxims are:

- Don't think about your health.
- Enjoy yourself as much as possible.
- Ignore diet tables.
- Eat whenever you feel inclined.
- Look on the bright side of things.

Sir George is particularly scornful about the diet on which another contributor to the "discussion" thrives—namely, two meals of eggs, bread and butter daily.

"Each a life," he says, "would not be worth living. The great question is not how to live long, but how to live well."

PECULIAR CONDUCT OF POLLY'S QUEER VISITOR

By CLAUDE BISSON.

All night long Polly Witham had shivered under the sheets and at 4 o'clock when the eastern sky was a faint yellow and the birds were singing in the tall locusts she turned her face to the wall and slept for ten delicious minutes.

The screeching of the pump chain at the back door brought her trembling to the floor and she tiptoed to the window and looked out, her eyes heavy with weariness.

Before the pump stood a tall young man clad in spotless white yachting clothes. His fair hair was guileless of covering. He was drinking water from a bright tin dipper.

Polly watched him with bated breath—as one watches an apparition, expecting it to vanish in thin air. But he did not vanish.

Polly raised the window a few cautious inches and spoke gruffly.

"Do you want anything?" she inquired inhospitably.

The stranger turned a pair of very blue eyes toward her. It was evident that he could not see her, but he stared at the shutter.

"Yes," he replied deliberately, "you may bring me half a cup of tea, half a cup of coffee and a few waffles."

"Is that all?" murmured Polly meekly.

"And make haste, please," he added, waving a sun-burned hand toward her.

Polly locked the window and hastened to the kitchen which was a dark and deserted as any kitchen would be at 4:30 on a June morning with mistress and maids away from home.

Polly made a hot fire of pine kindlings, set on the waffle iron to heat, filled the tea kettle, and ran upstairs to dress. Her only thought was to feed and get rid of the queerly behaved stranger on the front porch.

"Presently she groped her way through the smoke filled kitchen with a tray containing crisp waffles and butter, a cup of tea and a cup of coffee, with the necessary sugar and cream. Cautiously she opened the back door and placed the tray on the bench outside. Then she relocked the door and hastened to the front window.

"Your breakfast is ready on the back porch," announced Polly through a crack of the window.

"Thank you," he said alertly, and hurried down the steps.

He stopped short at sight of the breakfast tray and shook his head. Then he grasped the coffee cup and poured half its contents upon the ground. He repeated the operation with the tea cup. Then he sat down on the steps and proceeded to consume the waffles, drinking first a swallow of tea and then a swallow of coffee. Suddenly he leaped to his feet, swept his cap off and addressed the kitchen door:

"Farewell, fair waffer!" he ejaculated, and stalked away.

Polly Witham watched until his tall form had disappeared down a wooded road that led to the village. Then she sat down on the floor and alternately laughed and cried.

Later in the morning she drove her little car down to the postoffice. As she passed the livery stable she noticed that the newly washed carriages were ranged along the curbstone.

On the front seat of a horseless surrey sat her visitor of the morning, a rose in his lapel. A laprobe was carefully spread over his knees and he was sitting very straight and staring right over the heads of the indignant liveryman and the village constable.

The constable rubbed his ear with a polished stick of authority. "Come down outer there, young feller," he rasped.

The stranger smiled patronizingly. "My good man, be good enough to bring me half a cup of tea and half a cup of coffee," he said.

As the words died on his lips, the stranger's face grew pale and gaunt. His head drooped and he crumpled down on the seat.

"Ah!" cried impulsive Polly, as the little crowd of onlookers held back from assisting the stricken man. "Can't you see that he is ill? Help him! Into my car, constable—he's a friend of ours," she cried.

In a few moments Polly was racing toward home with the constable supporting the unconscious man in the seat beside her.

Later that afternoon a little party of yachtsmen called at the Witham home and inquired for Polly's invalid who had regained consciousness only to sink into a deep slumber. They explained to Polly that the stranger was Paul Amory, owner of the yacht Seadrift, anchored in the bay below. Mr. Amory had been suffering from sunstroke and had eluded his watchers and left the vessel in the night.

Two weeks later, long after Mr. and Mrs. Witham had returned home, Paul Amory, quite recovered from his illness, took his departure.

"Miss Polly," said Amory, "since I've been convalescent, I've been remembering some funny things that happened—before you befriended me that morning."

"Yes?" asked Polly, blushing a little.

"You are the fair waffer?" he smiled down at her.

"I am the waffer," admitted Polly solemnly.

"And the half cups—were you not frightened?"

"I was—and yet it was funny, too."

"Well—I wonder if you'll forgive me for all the trouble I've caused you and if you will let me return some day for the other half cup?" His hand closed over her small one.

"I—hope you will," faltered Polly.

Looking Ahead.

The hotels in the west end of London were somewhat crowded—some what—during the busy summer months, and service in some of the restaurants was slow.

One morning a big well-dressed man walked into one of the hotel dining rooms and pounded on the table. A waiter came over.

"Breakfast Bill of fare!" ordered the big man.

The waiter gave him one and stood it attention, whereupon the guest proceeded to order a most sumptuous breakfast. When he had finished he looked over on the waiter's record of the order and approved it.

"Well serve it right away, sir."

"Serve it right away!" roared the big man. "Who asked you to serve it right away? I'm ordering this breakfast now for tomorrow morning!"

"Scotched."

An English general was in company where some Scotch gentlemen were present. After supper, when the wine was served up, the general rose and addressed the company in the following words: "Gentlemen, I must inform you that when I get a little too much drunk I have an absurd custom of talking against the Scotch; I hope no gentleman in company will take it amiss." With this he sat down.

A Scotch gentleman immediately rose, and, without seeming the least displeased, said: "Gentlemen, I, when I have drunk rather freely, and hear any person railing against the Scotch, have an absurd custom of kicking him out of the company; I hope no gentleman will take it amiss." It is said that on that occasion the Scotchman had no opportunity for the exercise of his talents.

Franklin's Kite Experiment.
Commenting on Benjamin Franklin's kite experiment, which proved that lightning and electricity are the same, a scientist says: "It was one of the most brilliant examples of luck yet recorded. To attempt the extraction of lightning flashes from a lowering sky was almost suicidal. Even at this late day timid persons occasionally fly to feather beds, sit on glass legged chairs or find refuge in rubber boots during thunderstorms. A repetition of Franklin's experiment cost his immediate imitator his life."

Cooking Accounts.
The word cook, used in the sense of "cook up accounts," is generally put in quotation marks, but the phrase has been almost long enough in use to give it indisputable standing. Smollett wrote of "cooking accounts" in 1751, and proofs were "cooked" a century earlier, but somehow "cook" remains what the dictionaries sniff at as "colloquial" in this sense, while "concoct," which means to cook or boil together, has the status of a fully accepted word. The Romans used "concoquo" and the simple "coquo" alike in the metaphorical sense of pondering and devising, but the obvious metaphor of "cooking" accounts never occurred to them.

Sweetheart of "Robin Adair."
"Robin Adair" was written by Lady Caroline Keppel, the daughter of the Earl of Albemarle. Robin was a real character, a young Irish doctor who had been forced by a scandalous adventure to leave Ireland and seek his fortune in England. Chance threw a rich patient in his way, a lady of quality, and at her house he met Lady Caroline, and the result was a case of love at first sight on both sides. Her parents objected and sent her away, and during her absence she produced the song.

Convinced.
Mr. Sponzy (slightly related)—Splendid! Magnificent! Do you know, Uncle Eli, I believe I shall never get tired of seeing the sun set behind that hill! Uncle Eli—That's what me an' mother's legions to think—Puck.

The Good One.
"There is but one good wife in this town," said a clergyman in the course of his sermon, the congregation looked expectant, and every married man thinks he's got her," added the minister.

Sheridan's Great Comedy.
"The School for Scandal" was first produced at the Drury Lane theater on April 8, 1777.

PERKINS EASILY DOES UP HARRIS

St. Paul Colored "Pug" Is A Minor Proposition For Local Boxer

Billy Perkins, local middleweight, stopped Billy Harris, colored, of St. Paul, in the third stanza of a scheduled ten round bout at the Grand Opera House Friday night. Harris may be a fast manipulator of the gloves, but he failed to show any marked ability here. At first he refused to take on Perkins owing to the smallness of his end of the gate receipts, but a purse collected among the few good fans present induced him to change his mind. In the first round the ebony skinned boy made his best showing and stood up fairly well before the Rhineland idol. In the second round Perkins got into action and it could be readily observed that the contest was going to be of short duration. Harris was made to take the mat twice in this round and lost confidence of the audience. In the third verse a few well delivered blows from Perky caused the African to express his willingness to quit. Harris and his manager left for the Saintly City on the 2:10 Soo train Saturday morning. They made no attempt to arrange a return match. The semi wind-up between Young King and Harry Moline, welterweights, was easily the star number on the card. For six rounds the boys mixed things lively and both displayed cleverness at the game. King had the shade of the match. It is planned to fix a ten round bout between King and Moline at some future date. In the preliminary Kid McGuire and Donna Sharrett jogged along for four rounds at the end of which the Kid was glad to hear time called. Charley Bellie refereed all matches in a manner satisfactory to all concerned. The crowd in attendance fell far below the expectations of Promoter Zander, who declared at ter the show that it had been a financial failure.

Knocks Out Godfrey

USE OF MOURNING BORDERS

There Are a Few Set Rules, But Individual Taste Practically Decides the Question.

The average person chooses her mourning borders by individual taste rather than by rule and rarely changes the width until second mourning.

Good taste avoids the flaunting of grief and rarely countenances a border wider than a quarter of an inch, even for a widow. Even this is a trifle wide; three-sixteenths of an inch is a better width for widows, parents or children, and an eighth of an inch for a sister or brother.

The paper used is dead white linen of plain weave and lusterless. It is bad form to have a mourning border on striped or fancy paper, even though the color is kept white. Where a transparent paper is liked, as for foreign correspondence or to save postage, besides the border there is a separate lining of black tissue paper for each envelope.

Addresses and monograms are often stamped in unrelieved black. Some persons prefer them embossed in relief without color, especially if there be telephone and telegram numbers in addition to the address. When these are all in black they look less overpowering if a miniature receiver and telegraph pole and lines are used instead of the word telephone or telegram.

As mourning borders are expensive, the stationery of grief is costly. It can rarely be had by the pound as other papers, but sometimes is cheaper by the box, containing several quires. As there is usually a reduction for getting a large quantity, it pays to lay in a supply.

Correspondence cards carry the same borders as writing paper. When there are no engraved acknowledgments these cards are quite large enough for a few words of appreciation. Sometimes a sentence is written across the top of the visiting card.

Black bordered envelopes to fit the visiting card should be bought by the hundred, as the card will do social duty during the entire period of mourning.

HAS A LARGE VOCABULARY

Number of Words Used by Small Child Will Surprise One Who Is Not a Close Observer.

How many words does the ordinary child know? Fifty? Wrong. A hundred? Wrong again. Five hundred, for a wild guess? A little nearer, but not much. The truth is that people underestimate the number of words their children can speak.

Take a paper and pencil, follow the child for several days, several weeks, putting down every new word that is uttered. You'll find out some things that will surprise you. And when the word "child" is used, it does not refer to a boy or girl of seven or eight, but one of three.

An investigation recently made by following a child at that age and noting every word that was used, showed that it had memorized 1771 different words. They covered practically everything with which it came in contact, and were a had never heard before.

Another investigation by children between 1 months old showed that a vocabulary that was reported the use of 60 words. The next was 232 words. From two years on, the vocabulary of a child increases rapidly, until at three years the average child has a vocabulary of at least 1,000 words.

"The Brave Old Oak"

Whether its branches show green against a dark blue sky—gold where the sunlight touches them—whether its leaves show magenta in the light of the setting sun, or black and silver in the moonlight, there is no tree of them all to compare with the oak. All a summer's day you may lie stretched beneath it, so strong and so friendly, not to you only, but to all the little lives that swarm about its roots. All kinds of busy creatures, ants, spiders, daddy-long-legs, beloved of your childhood, are scurrying over you on this errand and that, as an afraid, almost, as if you were dead. A feeling of kinship comes to you; a knowledge that all this life about you in oak and grass and insect, and the good dog lying at your feet, is but a little part of the greatest and richest of all things, the life of the earth. An aching heart, there is a realization that soon, your father, and loves forgotten, your tired body shall rest under the trees all the days and all the nights—Amen.

Talkative Shrew.—Don't you find that having to wait on so many fussy, disagreeable people, has at least one compensation—that of making you forget your other troubles? "Cultured Saleslady"—Oh, it acts as a counter irritant—Judge.

And Yet Occasionally?
"Life is not a damn thing, palmetto, yes; tragic, yes; squalid, yes; did, crazy, jolly, I with dreams and laughter, an immense joke, and a black grief—but please, mister, 'Views and Vagabonds' by R. Macaulay.

Good Old Fashioned Common Sense

Honesty and Hustling Are What Make Young Men and Women Successful.

For twenty-three years, we have prepared young people for positions, paying from $45 to $75 per month to begin with. We do not care how old you are, how young you are, how much education you have or have not, we can prepare you in one of our courses for a first class position. Here are a few facts. More employed graduates than all the business schools combined in Minnesota, Wisconsin and North and South Dakota. Expert Faculty. Handsome and complete equipment. Every modern office device known. No entrance examinations. No public recitations. Personal instruction. Low rates of tuition and board. Students board in private homes of people we know. Beautiful and healthful city on the Mississippi river. Immediate report and care in case of sickness. Recommended by Bishop and every clergyman and every bank in the city, and by many of the great men of the United States. Students from Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, North and South Dakota, Montana, Indiana, New Mexico and Canada and foreign countries. Happiest student dances, parties, theater parties, etc., all under school supervision. You are at home the first day. All you have to do is to pack your trunk and come; we attend to everything else for you. Parents can trust this school. Only school that offers one month trial free and pays part car fare.

If you are going to school and these things are all true, is not the W. B. U. worthy of your attention?

The Wisconsin Business University of La Crosse, Wisconsin, in the twenty-third year and chartered by the state asks for your patronage. It is too old, has too high a reputation, and is too solid financially to lie in its work, in its letters, or in its advertisements.

Write me, ask questions, and I will give you letter personal attention. Send for beautiful catalog free and the greatest list of successful students ever published. Winter Term begins January 6th. Address Leigh Toland, President, Wisconsin Business University, La Crosse, Wis. J2

Concrete an Old Story.

Rome was not built in a day, nor built as fast as Tammanytown, nor built in structural steel, but it turns out that most of Rome's mighty structures, temples, circuses, baths, aqueducts, were built in concrete, not reinforced with iron and steel, as we build now, but a good quality of sand, stone and cement nevertheless. On this powerful central core of cement was fitted an ornamental facing of finest marble.

Happiest Home.

But the happiest home is built when the twin together meet the trials and catastrophes that come from the outside world with the good health, the common sense, the humor, the patience and courage that will rout them. It should not be necessary for these qualities to be used by the one to combat the faults of the other.

—Barbara Boyd.

Hadn't Done So Badly.

"I might have married a millionaire," declared Everywoman. "One of my old schoolmates is now one." "And several of your schoolmates are working right in this town for $10 a week," retorted Everyman. "while one of them is in jail. I guess in marrying a chap getting $1,500 a year your average is fairly good." And then Everybody set up a howl and they had to stop quarrelling to attend to him.—Pittsburg Post.

Lucrative Find in South Africa.

South Africa's possibilities as a producer of vegetable oils are wide indeed if the results of recent experiments under the auspices of the Mozambique authorities are translated into commercial realities. For instance, the fruit of the "macua-macua" was shown to yield no less than 60 per cent of fine edible oil, and of the "pombala" 52 per cent.

Indexing Extraordinary.

Indexers have been responsible for many errors, but possibly the strangest example of curious indexing occurs in a law book. Turning over its index, a correspondent of the London Chronicle noted the entry: "Best, Mr. Justice, His Great Mind," and reference to the page brought this: "Mr. Justice Best said he had a great mind to commit the witness for contempt of court."

House Built of Porcelain.

An English inventor is building a house of sheets of porcelain, paneled and welded on a steel framework. The walls, being non-porous, would not retain dirt or disease germs. No matter how careless or dirty the previous tenant had been, a bucketful of water and some soap would make it as sweet and clean as a polished dinner plate.

Poultry took a flight skyward since Thanksgiving and at Christmas and
New Years time turkeys sold at 25 and 25 cents per pound. Ducks and 20 cents. The high prices are due to the scarcity of poultry, the dealers claiming that it is impossible to

A CLOSE INSPECTION OF OUR STOCK

Will reveal its superior quality and convince you of the wide difference that really exists in lumber. You may imagine that lumber is all the same, but you were never more mistaken in your life, if you imagine that. There's as much difference between two boards that pass for the same grade as there is between a plug and a thoroughbred.

We invite a critical examination of our stock, simply because we know it to be much better than the average. QUALITY: That's our hobby. When we sell you a bill of lumber we want to know positively that you will be satisfied that you've got the best your money will buy, and will come to us when you want something else in building material.

WARFARE THAT ENDED MOST UNEXPECTEDLY

By GEORGE F. STAAT.

"Eggs again?" It was a query, an accusation and a protest.

"Yes," said Tommy Thomas. "Why not? There's more nourishment in a soft-boiled egg."

"Feather bed," interrupted his chum. "Truth is, you're too lazy to cook anything else."

"Oooh, you tell whoops! And what, Mr. Simian Wellington, did YOU cook last week?"

Simoneon was obliged to take the defensive. "Aw, but I didn't plain-boil and plain-boil till the hens came home. I served those eggs in eight different ways, and you know it."

"Yeah, and with the shells every time. Fact is, Sim, I'm tired of pot-terreslin. I'll run you a race to the postoffice and back to see who cooks for a month."

"Nay, son. Not being blessed with krumsticks like yours, I'll have to decline your glittering offer. But I'll be sportier than that."

He picked up an egg, held it to the light, listened at each end mysteriously, and then rejected it. He took up another egg and did the same. After diagnosing the third, his face lighted with joy.

"A very strong egg, Tommy. A perfect type of the Roman arch. Now, sir, I can fix this egg so you cannot break it with an iron implement—er, that stovetid, well say."

"Just try me."

"If you do, I'll cook for a month. If you don't I'm to have six biscuits and hot rolled oats for a month."

"I weep for a poor orphan like you, Sim, but—turn on the blizzard."

Wellington took his chosen egg—it was a small one—and stood it in a corner of the room.

It was an ancient trick, almost as old as the Columbus stunt, and Tommy knew he could not hope to break the egg in that position with the circular weapon. But he betrayed no chagrin. He calmly picked up a poker as well as the stovetid, and proceeded to pry away the partitions forming the corner.

"I say," began Sim, fearsome for the landlady's bill. Then a brilliant idea bumped him.

Pfioosh! A moist, warm, soft-boiled egg struck Tommy on his pet cowlick and the effluvium began to cascade into his collar, thence to the back of his vest.

And the battle was on. Tommy jumped to the table and commandeered the plate of cooked eggs. Sim rifled the cupboard of the half-bagful of raw ones. Only a baseball reporter could adequately deal with the doings of those eggs thereafter.

Presently Sim retreated—or Tommy thought he did. He ran downstairs pursued by a "Yah, squaler, come again!" from the apparent victor.

On the first floor was a grocer's shop. A sign read:

FRESH RANCH EGGS,
35c doz.

"Gimme two dozen eggs," cried Sim. "Charge it to Mr. Moomas, as usual."

Utairs he galloped and began a fusillade from the doorway. Poor Tommy dodged behind the bed. Sim entered and pursued him from his hiding place, punctuating his howls with fresh ranch eggs. Tommy now fed, but grabbed the door key as he ran.

Sim understood. Tommy was coming back with ammunition. He moved bed, oil stove and table against the door. He was in the act of uprooting the stationary wash basin when a "balm, squashy, not-quite-so-guaranteed ranch egg hit him in the bridge of his nose. It had come over the transom.

The next one decorated his shirt front. The third missed him and broke the mirror. Eggs now came thick and fast, two whole dozen, at 25 cents per, pursuing him to the fire escape. With simian agility he made his way down to that corner grocery and asked for more eggs.

But Sim was in too big a hurry to explain. He gathered up all the eggs left in the crate, put them into a huge paper bag and with a "Charge 'em to Mr. Thomas," bounded up those stairs again.

Tommy was nowhere in sight. The barricade had been pushed in.

"But I'll get the rascal," muttered Nemesio-of-the-Ova. "He's gone after more eggs. Score one point for me."

He shut the window to prevent a fear attack, then threw up fortifications in front of the open door.

Steps, soft steps, ascending the stairs! A head looming from the semi-darkness, looking inquiringly into the room.

Whizz! Pfioosh! An egg cleaving the air and finding its mark.

"Got ye, did I?" yelled Sim, triumphantly, emerging from the rampart with another egg ready for the throw. "Have another!"

A scream. Feminine. Not the landlady's, either. The too-eager egg stifled the scream.

"Sim Wellington, you nasty, good-for-nothing wretch!" The victim was spluttering eggshells with every syllable. "I called to tell you your aunt—but I won't."

And the girl—young, pretty and all that—bounced down the stairs.

It was Sim's sweetheart. But Sim didn't feel like calling her back.

"Polly!" gasped the gallant warrior in awe. "And auntie of the money bags probably coming to see me this very day!"

EDNA'S BURGLAR WAS NOT A REAL ROBBER

By MOLLY McMASTER.

Edna sat up and listened. Her heart was beating with almost breathless rapidity from having been awakened from sound sleep. It was the third time during the night that she sat up to listen, and as she sank back at this hour of three in the morning she told herself it was only the strangeness of an unfamiliar room that kept her so keenly alive to sounds.

She closed her eyes but opened them again. Surely some one was just outside her window! The sound came from below as if the intruder were attempting to climb up the great vine that covered the side of the house.

Edna became strangely calm. She stepped from her bed, and in the darkness slipped on her pink silk hose and satin slippers that she had left carelessly lying after an evening of dancing. Then she drew on her dainty pink tea gown.

Edna went cautiously toward the window and peeped through the mass of vines that clustered about the window frame. Her heart fluttered. A man was making his way slowly and by painful stages to her window.

She paused a moment wondering whether to wait until he reached the top and fell him with a chair or to throw something weighty down on his unsuspecting head.

Edna chose the latter method. She turned in the dark and by light of a pale moonbeam caught sight of the great water jug on the stand.

"That would certainly kill him," she told herself with a shudder; "I can not possibly do that." She would empty the contents of the jug on that ascending head.

The man was several yards from the ground; for a second Edna hesitated. Perhaps even then the fall might prove fatal.

"But I can not be murdered in my bed," she shuddered again and with a burst of courage leaned far out of the window and spilled the water with sure aim on the burglar's head.

She heard a muttered remark, a heavy thud and the pitcher dropped from her nerveless fingers. Her courage completely gone, Edna did her first feminine act of her escapade; she dropped in a heap just within the window.

The man, suddenly felled in his ascent, picked himself up with many short and terse words falling from his lips. He shook himself like a shaggy terrier, but he was drenched to the skin.

Looking up to see the cause of his downfall the man gasped. Lying across the window sill like a pale wedge of moonbeam was the arm of a woman.

With almost superhuman strength he sprang toward the vine and climbed to the window ledge.

He drew himself within the room and picked up the girl tenderly.

Being without resources of his own and knowing not what to do, he rushed out in the darkened hall and made his way down the stairs with his precious bundle.

Groping his way toward a door he hammered with his feet lest he drop the unconscious girl from his arms.

The door in the hall opened and a very frightened girl in blue kimono peeped out.

"Jack Danvers," she screamed, "have you lost your mind?" She glanced with frightened eyes at her brother. His clothes were dripping, and his face white and stern.

"No! But switch on the light and look at what I found in my room!" He followed her into the room and laid the girl on the couch. It seemed to Edna the action was reluctant. She began gradually to regain consciousness and opened her eyes. They lit first upon the stalwart big man whom she had taken for a burglar, and from him to the girl in the blue kimono.

The latter rushed to Edna's side and gathered her into her arms.

"Edna darling," she asked tenderly, "what in the world have they been doing to you? And why is my brother Jack all soaked and tearing madly through the pitch dark house with you?"

"I took—your brother for a burglar—and emptied the contents of the water jug on him. I am so sorry," she said prettily.

"It is all my fault," he told her quickly. "I was a silly chump to come out to the country at this time of night when the family would all be in bed, but somehow I just wanted to wake up in my own room and hear the birds sing. I often take a fancy of that kind, and when everyone is asleep I sometimes get in by climbing up the vine."

"I never even dreamed of your coming out for the week-end when I put Edna into your room," Mary Danvers was saying.

"It does not seem so terrible, sis," laughed Jack. "Does it to you?" He turned to Edna.

Edna glanced quickly up at him, and the color rushed swiftly up to meet her downcast eyes.

He gave a little helpless shrug of his shoulders that brought an ache to Edna's throat. He threw a glance at his sister and turned to leave the room.

Edna jumped up suddenly and flung herself into his arms. "Of course it did not seem terrible, dear," she cried swiftly, "but everything else has seemed terrible since I broke my engagement to you, and if you still love me—"

There was no need for words.

HOLIDAYS AT HOTELS

Business at the Rhinelander hotels has been better this holiday season than it has for many years past. While nearly all the traveling men are off the road there has been many strangers from the neighboring towns in the city who have made a constant demand upon the hotels for accommodations. One hotel keeper who has long been in business here remarked Tuesday that he has never before had such a brisk holiday patronage. It will not be for a week or two before the commercial men again become prominent about the lobbies.

WILL APPEAL TO LEGISLATURE

the profit from lands through reforestation is much less than the profit which might be made from these lands through agriculture is evident. A forty acre tract of land in Oneida county would be remarkable if it bore pine timber worth $10,000, while the same forty acres can (and it is done every year) produce 8,000 bushels of potatoes which, even at a price as low as twenty-five cents per bushel, would be worth $2,000 every year, while the growth of the $10,000 pine would require two hundred years.

It has been declared that the lands held by the state for reforestation are not good agricultural lands, but a view of these very lands will absolutely satisfy anyone with a minimum knowledge of the requirements that practically all of the state lands are not only fit but a great mass of them are particularly well suited for agricultural purposes. To further substantiate this we refer to the Agricultural Department of our State University, the Wisconsin Advancement Association, the Dean of the College of Agriculture, Professor Hatch of the University Extension and Prof. E. L. Luther, a man who is on the ground and knows.

While reforestation may benefit those people of means who desire a summer home with forest and stream, fish and game, it is at the expense of the state and to the extreme detriment of the northern part thereof.

With these lands occupied by actual settlers they would become of greater value, and the farm produce and its proceeds help to enrich the entire state; the prosperity of Northern Wisconsin would be shared by the rest of the state and taxes paid by farmers on these lands now held by the state and exempt from taxation would naturally reduce the amount of state taxes paid by the southern counties; banks, stores and all business would benefit; a new field for loans would be opened up; more bank depositors and purchasers of goods would spring up, and the poor man willing to work for himself could obtain a farm within his means which would provide a home and living for himself and family.

Another evil brought about by the state ownership of lands is that there are more than a few instances where settlers are so surrounded by state lands that the towns in which they live can give them no roads, and no one will settle as a neighbor. Such settler is then prevented from bringing his produce to town profitably, and is made a veritable Robinson Crusoe on an island surrounded by a sea of state land. He cannot farm profitably under these conditions nor can he sell his land at a fair price for no one will buy.

It cannot be successfully denied that reforestation as applied to Northern Wisconsin has resulted in great injustice to the people living in that part of the state, without any corresponding benefit, and we most earnestly challenge the attention of the Legislature of 1913 to the imperative necessity for granting us relief from present conditions by appropriate legislation.

Respectfully yours,
B. N. MORAN,
HENRY WUBKER SR
E. W. KNAPP,
Committee appointed by Oneida County Board.

THE WAY TO LIVE

Let me but live my life from year to year,
With forward face and unrelenting soul,
Not hurrying to nor turning from the goal,
Not mourning for the things that disappear
In the dim past nor holding back in fear
From what the future veils, but
With a whole
And happy heart that pays the toll
To you and age and travels on with cheer.—Henry van Dyke.

A Chilly Problem.

How cold is it when it is twice as cold as 2 degrees above zero? There are two zeros, one marked 0 on the thermometer and one known as absolute zero, which is understood to mark the absence of all heat. The zero of Fahrenheit's thermometer is obtained by immersing a tube of mercury in a mixture of snow and common salt and marking the place where the mercury stands in the tube. Absolute zero is 459 degrees below this zero. Now, "twice as cold" is exactly equivalent to half as hot. Therefore, when it is half as hot as 2 degrees above zero, or 461 F., it is 230.5 degrees below the zero on the thermometer.

Care of the Eyes.

On rising in the morning the eyes should be bathed gently in cold water. Twenty passes are said to be decidedly strengthening. While using them closely they should be rested at intervals of an hour or two, for the strain of constant reading, etc., is like that of extending the arms at a certain height immovably. Imagine, then, the taxing of the eyes, which cannot complain save after years of irreparable neglect. When dust settles in the eyes warm water will soothe them of any inflammation.—Exchange.

"But I never knew but one mother who had the courage to go to the matinee while her daughter did the housework."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Mist Name.

Little Florence climbed upon her father's lap on her birthday and put her arms around his neck. Father always called her Toodle, and until now she had answered to the name. But now she looked at him in surprise. "Why, I'm three now. I should think you'd call me 'Threedles,'" she said.—Judge's Library.
